Introduction to the Program

As a part of its search activities, Marsyangdi Multiple Campus (MMC) organised the First National Conference in collaboration with University Grants Commission, Nepal, from 10 to 11 May 2025 with the theme "Advancing Knowledge through Research: Research in Higher Education and Language Planning in Nepal's Educational Landscape". The proposed programme intended to disseminate research findings among scholars, teachers and stakeholders, which could be supportive to develop policies and programmes at the national and local levels to minimise the contemporary challenges observed in higher education and research management. The program aimed to identify research trends in higher education and the issues of language in education in Nepal. The proposed program intended to foster research initiatives in the faculties by providing a platform to present their papers on local educational and research issues, which could bring out a shift in the ways of educational and research planning by local governments.

Background of the Program

Research is a way of creating new knowledge by which one can shape or guide society properly and give comprehensive and exclusive ideas to overcome the different problems faced by the society or organization even by the country. So, research and the process of doing the research is essential for the personnel who are responsible for the decision-making process. Any university's faculty plays a vital role in enhancing and disseminating knowledge to the students and other stakeholders. Without deep knowledge and creativity about research methodology and academic writing, classroom teaching may not be effective for creating new ideas and perceiving real-life situations. Considering this fact, the research management cell (RMC) of MMC has been conducting various research-related activities including research report writing workshops, training on research methodology, thesis writing workshop for students, and journal publications, paper presentations to support the students and faculty members in involving in various research related activities in the campus. Moreover, MMC conducted a two-day national conference, inviting national experts from various sectors and research scholars and practitioners from six universities and more than 20 campuses from various parts of Nepal.

The national conference was supported by the UGC, Nepal, and the contributors were all the local governments of Lamjung districts, and some publications and financial organizations. Focusing on research in higher education and the issues of language in school and university education in Nepal, the conference theme was set as 'Advancing knowledge through research: Research in higher education and language planning in Nepal's educational landscape'. The conference had four sessions: Keynote speech, Plenary speech, Technical sessions, and Panel discussion. For the paper presentation, several thematic areas were notified to the concerned keynote and plenary speakers through email and to the paper presenters through public notice, social media and through emails. The thematic areas were set as: Emerging Trends and Challenges in Higher Education Research, Quality Assurance and Innovation in Higher Education, Language-in-Education Policy and its Implementation, Teacher Education, Capacity Building, and Leadership Development, ICT, Artificial Intelligence and Technological Innovation in Education, Sociology of Tourism, Migration and Brain Drain from Nepal, Emerging Issues in Literary Studies, Art and Culture, Ecology, Climate Change, and Sustainable Development, Human resource management, Corporate Social Responsibility, Strategic and Sustainable Management, Financial innovation and Inclusion, and Entrepreneurship and Digital Transformation. 4 keynote speeches, 4 plenary speech, 1 panel discussion and 30 papers were presented on these multidisciplinary themes at the conference.

Objectives of the Program

The conference has the following specific objectives:

- i. To explore innovative research practices in higher education that enhance teaching, learning, and academic quality in the Nepali context.
- ii. To examine the current status, challenges, and opportunities related to language policy in Nepal's education system, especially in multilingual settings.
- iii. To disseminate new knowledge among scholars and stakeholders to develop plans and policies to minimise problems observed in the fields of education and research
- iv. To provide a platform for researchers, educators, and policymakers to present and discuss findings related to education, language, and policy development.

Methodology Used for Conducting the Conference

The campus published the notice publicly requesting for abstract proposals to present at the conference with the theme and thematic areas. Besides, institutional email was sent to different universities and campuses of Nepal requesting their participation and presentation at the conference. Earlier, the national conference managing committee and various sub-committees were formed after the decision of the Campus Management Committee's decision about conducting the national conference from 10-11 May 2025 at the campus. The conference managing committee decided to offer accommodation and food facilities to all presenters and the participants from out district with free registration. So, the committee visited all the local governments (Municipalities and Rural Municipalities) of Lamjung district, who were ready to contribute the conference.

After managing the conference fund from the UGC, and the local governments, the organizing committee prepared a list of keynote and plenary speakers as per the conference theme and sub themes. The conference brochure and invitation letters were sent to the universities and campuses, and the abstract proposal were recorded, sent to expert for review, and notified the presenters for presentation with schedule. The campus published the conference proceedings with the accepted abstract proposals and programme scheduled.

As per the proposal, the first day of the conference started with the inauguration of the opening ceremony from 9.00 AM onward, and it lasted till 10:30. Prof. Keshar J. Baral, PhD, Former Vice Chancellor of Tribhuvan University and Pokhara University, was the chief guest at the inauguration programme. Similarly, Mr. Guman Sing Aryal, Mayor of Besishahar Municipality, Prof. Dr. Pradeep Chandra Gautam, Dr. Buddha Raj Khaniya, Assistant Dean of Faculty of Education, TU, and Prof. Dr. Dipak Bahadur Bhandari, Former Registrar of Pokhara University, were the special guests. The programme was chaired by Mr. Krishna Bahadur Adhikari, CMC chair.

Three keynote speeches, two plenary speeches, a panel discussion and technical sessions in three rooms were conducted on the first day. Each session was chaired by the senior personalities who provided feedback to the presenters. Most importantly, a Memorandum of Understanding (MOU) between Marsyangdi Multiple Campus, Lamjung and Drabya Shah Multiple Campus, Gorkha, was signed for academic and research collaboration between the two community campuses. The participants were offered breakfast from 8:00 to 9.00 AM and lunch at 12.30 – 13.15 PM. Similarly, one keynote, two plenary speeches and technical sessions were conducted on the second day. All the presenters, including the keynote and plenary, were awarded certificates and a token of love immediately after completion of their presentation by the campus authorities. The closing ceremony was conducted with the distribution of certificates to the participants. The conference organizing committee collected participants' reflections on the conference, too.

Day-Wise Performed Activities

The number of total participants, including the presenters and guests, was 120 on the first day. After the inaugural speech and felicitation, the students performed beautiful cultural dances welcoming the guests from different universities and campuses. The first keynote speaker was Prof. Dr. Keshar J. Baral, who highlighted the trends and practices of research in Nepali higher education. Prof. Dr. Pradip Chandra Gautam presented his keynote speech on leadership development. Similarly, in his keynote speech, Prof. Dr. Dipak Bahadur Bhandari presented on higher education, human capital and economic growth in Nepal. Similarly, Mr. Narayan Prasad Bhandari presented his plenary speech on 'regulations to reflection: re-orienting quality practices in Nepal's higher education. Similarly, 15 papers were presented on multidisciplinary themes in three technical sessions: Applied Linguistics and Literature, Management, Social Science, Education and Sustainable Development. Prof. Baral chaired the keynote and plenary sessions, whereas the experts in respective areas chaired the technical sessions and provided feedback to the presenters. At the end of the first day, a panel discussion on 'Language in Education: Debates, Practices and Consequences' was held with four panelists, and it was moderated by Mr. Binod Neupane, PhD scholar and a faculty member of the host campus. the first day program lasted till 6 pm with the enthusiastic presence and participation of the participants.

On the second day, Associate Professor Dr. Nabaraj Neupane presented his keynote speech on 'ICT, Artificial Intelligence and Technological Innovation in Education'. Immediately, Janga Bahadur Hamal presented his plenary speech on Changing Landscape of Investment Decisions in the Capital Market of Nepal and Dr. Basanta Kandel on 'Language Policies and Practices at Local Governments' Educational Landscapes'. Both sessions were chaired by Prof. Dr. Pradip Chandra Gautam. After this, the remaining paper presenters presented their papers in their respective sessions and thematic areas.

The closing session, chaired by the CMC chairperson, ended with excitement to collaborate and work in research and to integrate research in higher education. The Campus Chief, Prof. Hari Babu Thapa, extended the vote of thanks on behalf of the host campus for their valuable presence. Mr. Chairperson, Krishna Bahadur Adhikari, also extended his acknowledgement to the chief guests, special guests, and all the presenters. The national conference ended with the announcement of the host campus to meet next year for the first international conference.

Achievement and Outcome of the Conference

The national conference, conducted for the first time in the district, remained productive as it enhanced research skills and research culture in higher education in Nepal. The gathering of a large number of research scholars, experts and practitioners was a good platform to learn and share their research findings, sharing their institutional practices and promoting institutional and personal collaboration in research-related activities. The language issues in education, a burning issue in Nepali school and university education, were also discussed and led to a common understanding about language policy at the local government and federal government in Nepal. Moreover, the following were the outcomes of the conference:

- a. Enhanced understanding of research trends in higher education across disciplines.
- b. The young researchers and faculty members got familiar with the latest trends in research in higher education and language policy in Nepal.
- c. Participants gained a deeper understanding of current language policies in Nepal and their implications for inclusive and equitable education.
- d. Young researchers and faculty have strengthened their research capacity through interaction, feedback, and exposure to diverse methodologies.
- e. Participants have built networks for future research collaboration and academic exchange.

- f. The conference promoted the publication and sharing of scholarly work, contributing to national academic discourse.

Challenges and Way Forward

Organizing the national conference in a remote district like Lamjung has both opportunities as well as challenges. The major challenge is managing accommodation, stationery and food for the presenters and participants. Charging the registration fee may discourage the presenters to contribute in the conference. We would not be able to receive such valuable abstract proposals and presenters if there were no accommodation and food facilities for the presenters and the participants from outside the district, and from remote parts of the district. Similarly, managing all presentations in two days was also challenging. Moreover, the heavy rain and road obstruction also created problems in managing the conference.

Such conferences will become more effective if travel grants are provided to the paper presenters at the conferences. Similarly, such programmes will become more effective if they are assigned at least three months before the deadline of report submission so that sufficient preparation can be made for the programme conduction.

Conclusion and Recommendation

The First National Conference remained successful in the sense that papers on diversified areas were presented at the conference by the researchers at the centre and periphery. The participants and the paper presenters were from diverse universities and campuses, as the record reveals that they were from 5 universities, including TU, Pokhara University, Lincoln College University, Malaysia. Purbanchal University and Nepal Open University. The novice researchers received suggestions from the experts to improve their papers to make them publishable in ranked journals. Moreover, enthusiasm from the participant teachers and students at the conference has encouraged the Research Management Cell and the host campus to organise even international conferences in the future.

It is suggested that the proposed programmes be approved in time so that the organisers have sufficient time to prepare them. Furthermore, the presenters should be provided with support for travel costs and accommodation, which will motivate the researchers to participate in conferences.

Acknowledgement

On behalf of MMC, we would like to extend our sincere gratitude to the University Grants Commission, Nepal for the support to organize the first national conference for the first time in the district. Similarly, we acknowledge the Mayors of Besishahar Municipality, Sundarbazar Municipality, Madhyanepal Municipality, Rainas Municipality, the Chairpersons of Dordi Rural Municipality, Marsyangdi Rural Municipality, Dudhpokhari Rural Municipality, and Kwlohvarsotar Rural Municipality for their contribution to making the conference a grand success. We are thankful to the chief guest, special guests, all the keynote speakers, plenary speakers, paper presenters, campus chiefs, and all the participants for their valuable time. Furthermore, credit goes to Asmita Publication for stationery support, Global IME Bank, Prime Commercial Bank, and Krishak Jagaran Cooperative for their financial support. Last but not least, we are thankful to the CMC members, former members, teaching and non-teaching staff, students, local communities and journalists who helped us directly or indirectly to make the conference successful.
